CERAMIC TIMELINE

The Era of civilization lies upon art and culture. From ancient to present era, ceramic tiles are used as the oldest form of decoration. This tradition comes from the multidimensional use and longtime durability of clay.

900-1300 BCE

During the Islamic period, beautiful tile works found in Tunisia (9th century)

ISLAMIC PERIOD

4th Millineum BC- 5th Century

The earliest use of decorative tiles was found in Egypt, dating from about 4000 BCE

ANCIENT ERA

5th-1500 BCE

In the Middle Age, decorative tiles became more popular in Europe. They first spread from Spain, in the time of the Moors, and then to the neighbouring countries, finally spread to the rest of Europe.

MIDDLE AGE & EUROPE

INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION

1760-1840

The British used the manufacturing process to mass-produce ceramic tiles, making them more affordable for the middle class.

SHANG DYNASTY-EASTERN HAN DYNASTY

1600-1046 BCE

Ceramic products, such as vases, bricks, and tiles, became popular in the Middle East and Europe.

20TH CENTURY & DECORATIVE TILES

Trend of the early 20th century was decorative tiles influenced by the Art Nouveau and Art Deco styles, popular between 1900 and 1940.

21ST CENTURY & BEYOND

In 21st century, customized digitally printed tiles brought the ultimate revolution.

PREMIUM GLAZED PORCELAIN

Special glossy
digital effect

High abrasion resistance

Long lasting design

DBL Ceramics introduces Premium Glazed Porcelain in 30x60 and 60x60 sizes. Usually, Glazed Porcelain products do not reflect light. However, thanks to the special glossy effect application by digital inkjet machine which makes this type of tiles spot light reflective when light is spotted on the tiles surface. This type of tiles has good abrasion resistance as well.

GLAZED PORCELAIN

Glazed Porcelain products are different from other conventional products as we provide an extra protection layer on the surface after design application. This layer acts as a protective layer and keeps the design intact even in high abrasion places. This type of tiles has high abrasion resistance which is very near to the line of Technical Porcelain.

The image shows a close-up, vertical view of a rustic wall made of horizontal wooden planks. The planks are light-colored, possibly pine or spruce, and feature prominent, dark, circular knots. The wood grain is clearly visible, running horizontally across the planks. The lighting is even, highlighting the natural texture and imperfections of the wood. The overall appearance is that of a well-used, aged wooden wall.
